COUNTY GRANGERS MEET HERE

Session of More than Usual Interest with Morning and Afternoon Sessions-Several Speakers Heard on Apple Culture and Packing.

New London County Pomona grange, No. 6. Patrons of Husbandry, held a laregly attended meeting here on Wednesday, with morning and afternoon sessions, in Pythian hall. The morning session opened at 10 o'clock for general business, with Worthy Master Everett P. Barnes presiding, and about 150 in attendance. Clerk O. L. Fultz kept the minutes. The usual reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented and accepted, showing the grange to be in a satisfactory condition, with a membership of about 208.

The following eight new members were added to the roll at this meeting: Miss Laura P. Young, H. W. Dawley, Miss E. C. Terry, Harriet P. Young, Ransom H. Young, John E. Fanning, Nellie J. Skinner and Mary E. Jewett. Practically all of the thirteen granges of the county were represented in those attending the meeting, and in addition to the business the social intercourse enjoyed made the sessions among the most successful that the Pomona has held.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session was open to the friends of the members and was largely attended, with a programme of interest to each one. Worthy Master Barnes called it to order a few minutes after 2 o'clock and after a vote of thanks for the entertainment had been passed to Norwich grange, be had been passed to Norwich grange, he turned the meeting over to Worthy Lecturer G. Warren Davis, who conducted the programme introducing the speakers with humorous allusions. A bass solo, Asleep in the Deep, by Frederick W. Burton of Ledyard grange, opened the programme, and was followed by an address upon Connecticut as a Fruit Growing State by Hon. J. H. Hale of Glastonbury grange. He delighted his hearers as he spoke along the same lines on which he had addressed the Norwich board of trade the evening before, showing that successdressed the Norwich board of trade the evening before, showing that successful fruit growing in Connecticut was merely a question of putting business and brains into it, instead of stupidity and the "farming don't pay" whine. It was up to the young men to study the markets, the soils, and methods of cultivation, and avail themselves of experimental stations, agricultural collegs, the government bulletins and other information, so that the abandoned farms might be reclaimed through the use of hortfcultural brains. He was loudly applauded.

Allen of Mystic gronge, showed the present condition of the order by readpresent condition of the order by reading from the national worthy master's address and from some state reports. These showed that the order was in a better condition than at any time since it had been established and in the last year had made a larger net gain in membership than at any time since 1878. There had been a gain of over 34,000 in finances, with one or two states not heard from yet. Mr. Peckham demonstrated by a number of samples from barrels received by the Allen-Beeman company how the Maine Beeman company how the Maine packers were paying no regard to the Maine state law regarding the grading of apples. One lot of samples was from a barrel graded "extra fancy Maine baldwins." Apples of 3-inch diameter are called "fancy," those of 2 1-2 inch are No. 1, but this sample lot contained not a single apple of fancy grade, only one of the No. 1 size and the rest dwindled down to cider apples. He also had a number of other samples, russets and baldwins, which made a ludicrous showing beside Mr. Brown's prize fruit. There is a $50 fine for marking apples that do not conform to the size, and it was stated that Mr. Brown would write to the worthy master in this Maine packer's neighborhood and have this matter looked dip.

Board of Trade President.

President Frederic W. Cary of the Norwich board of trade pleasantly but briefly addressed the grange, referring to the experiences of this country which showed that the farmers were after all the real prosperous class, either in times of financial depression or of great prosperity. Boards of trade are discovering that it is often unsatisfactory to pay bonuses to manufacturing concerns to get them to relocate their factories. Consequently the state board of trade and the Boston chamber of commerce are devoting more attention to the spread of scientific agriculture. As manufacturing develops there must be an increase of agriculture, for they are interdependent, since the factories of the country use 42 per cent. of the products of agriculture. President Cary spoke of impressions he had received through attending the waterways commission in Washington, and said that it was shown that there must be a development of the inland waterways of the country, for the radroads were inadequate in a prosperous year to transport the crops. He urged that the agriculturalists take up and advocate this idea. He hoped that New London county would soon be raising such beautiful apples as had been shown during the afternoon and that the grange would meet the next time in Norwich.

A few words were heard from N. E. Bray of Lakeville grange, in Maine, who happened to be a visitor at the meeting. He was called upon by Lecturer Davis and responded by saying that he meant to look up the fruit packer who had given Maine apples a black eye by the exhibit that had been made during the afternoon. He spoke of the need of a standard so that stuff could be marketed at its value, and told the grangers that Connecticut ought to grow as good ponecticut ought to grow as good po-tatoes as they do in Maine, but the Connecticut farmers were getting poor

Worthy Master Barnes then declared the meeting adjourned.
